

MENTIONED IN BRIEF

Town Talk and Neighborhood Notes Tersely Told

MANY ITEMS OF INTEREST

Gleaned From Various Sources—Little Points Picked Up By Vigilant Reporters.

H. E. Bowser and Amy E. Elder, both of Saxton, were granted a marriage license in Huntingdon this week.

James Henry of Everett has been appointed agent of the Huntingdon and Broad Top Railroad at Riddlesburg.

A license to wed was issued this week in Cumberland to Jacob Emory Burket and Luella Burket, both of Queen.

Among the marriage license granted at Somerset last week was one to William R. Potts of Windber and Ida C. Small of New Paris.

On Monday Mrs. M. Virginia Horne entertained a number of her friends at dinner at her home, East Penn Street, in honor of Mrs. Maurice Irvine of Llyswen.

At a birthday party in honor of little Marie Litzinger, held at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Jamison, a number of little friends were delightfully entertained.

The ladies of the Lutheran Church will hold a chicken and biscuit supper in the Oppenheimer room, Wednesday evening, November 1, from 5 to 10 o'clock. Supper 25 cents.

Mrs. Annie L. Dibert has brought suit against the Altoona Urban Mutual Fire Insurance Company for insurance on property burned at Buffalo Mills during the past summer.

Services to be held in St. James' Episcopal Church next Sunday, the 29th inst., at 11 a. m., will be conducted by the Rev. Cecil Penyton Wilson. All are cordially invited to attend.

The following was omitted in the Premium List published last week: Division K, Class 41, Apilary—Miss Fannie Heckerman, display of comb honey in sections; $1; beeswax 75c. H. O. Weber, display of comb honey, 50c; beeswax, 50c.

The Presbyterian Church is being re-wired this week and a new lighting system is being inserted. Colonial shades are being used throughout the church, all the wiring is concealed, and all the metal work is brass. The local Electric Light Company is doing the work.

Dr. Americus Enfield, when Sheriff of Bedford County some years ago, proved himself an efficient officer. He should be elected to the office he seeks. Mr. Dodson can wait a while and, meanwhile get out from under the "Party right or wrong" banner.

Mrs. Levi Miller

Mrs. Mary Miller, wife of Levi Miller of Point, died Tuesday afternoon, October 24, aged 75 years and eight months. She is survived by her husband, whose age is past 83; two sons, Henry and Albert of Johnstown, and one daughter, Mrs. J. M. Cable of Point. She is also survived by twelve grand children, five great grand children, five sisters and one brother; Mrs. Catharine Onstad of Helienville, Mrs. Barbara Ream of Johnstown, Mrs. Sarah Wolf of Carbondale, Kas., J. C. Blough of Goshen, Ind., Mrs. Nancy Croup of Waterford, Ind., and Mrs. Elizabeth Brumbaugh of Goshen, Ind. Her brother has been with her a greater part of the time during her last illness.

Mrs. Miller has been a constant sufferer from rheumatism for a long time. She had not been able to walk for the last 26 years, but was able to sit in a chair and spend a great part of her time piecing quilts, of which she had a fine collection. She had not been able to rest in a bed since last March. She was a member of the Mennonite Church.

The funeral service was held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Levi Rogers in the German Baptist Church at Point. Interment was made in the Schellsburg Cemetery. The bereaved friends have the sincere sympathy of the entire community in this, their hour of sorrow.

"To paraphrase the patriotic expression of 'My Country, right or wrong, but still my Country'—let it be 'My party, right or wrong, but still my party.'—Bedford Inquirer, October 6, 1911.

In the sketch of the life of Thomas N. Imler in last week's Inquirer it is asserted "He is well known in the county." If he isn't he ought to be before the ballots are cast.

Koontz-Andrews

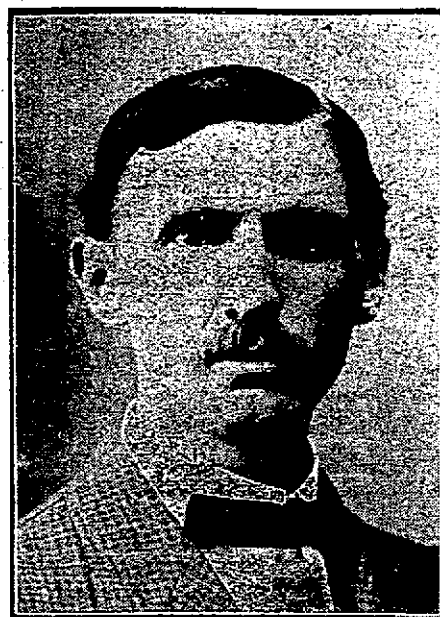

At the home of the bride at Mattie, Charles E. Koontz of Bedford and Miss Sarah R. Andrews were united in marriage Thursday afternoon, October 19, by Rev. J. Guldin of Clearville. The bride is a daughter of John C. Andrews, a prominent citizen of that section of the county. Mr. Koontz is a bookkeeper for the Hartley Banking Company.

Kinton-Clark

W. Howard Kinton and Miss Letty Grace Clark, two well known young people of Mann's Choice, were married at the Presbyterian manse in Center Hall, Pa., on Wednesday, October 25, by Rev. W. H. Schuyler, a former pastor of the bride.

B. F. MADORE

Able Lawyer and Candidate for District Attorney.

B. F. MADORE

B. F. Madore, the candidate for District Attorney, has had 16 years experience before the court. He is well and favorably known in every district in the county. He is the most studious, and attentive to his practice of the junior members of the bar, and is congenial and approachable—always the same. His ability and experience qualify him for the duties of the office, and if elected, the Commonwealth will have an officer who will perform his duty with fidelity.

An estimate of Mr. Guyer, who seeks re-election to the office of Prothonotary and Clerk of the Courts, is found elsewhere on this page. "Don't fail to read it; we print it in full."

WILLIAM T. BENNER

Well Qualified for the Office of Register and Recorder.

William T. Benner, candidate for Register and Recorder, was born in Blair County, December 31, 1867, and, with his parents, came to Saxton in 1875. When he was eleven years old he went to live with a farmer for three years. He next went to live with and to care for his grandmother, working in summer and attending public school in winter. He attended Normal School in Saxton under J. S. Souser, teacher. In 1887 he was examined for a teacher's certificate and was elected to teach the Bunker Hill school in Liberty Township, which place he filled with credit. At the close of the term he went into the employ of the Huntingdon and Broad Top Railroad Company as a brakeman, and after two years' service he was promoted to the rank of conductor. On his second trip he had his hand crushed which has left him a cripple.

Mr. Benner was married to Flora J. Angove to whom were born six children. His home is well managed and his one great concern is that his children get a good education and do well in life.

In recent years he served as yard master for the Standard Steel Company at Burnham, Pa., and for the past three years has been the efficient Saxton Borough policeman in which capacity he has been a terror to evil-doers, especially those inclined to sell intoxicating liquors illegally. It is generally conceded that Saxton was the starting place of the recent temperance wave in Bedford County. Mr. Benner was one of a number of the best citizens of the little town who were in the thick of the fight. After Saxton won her fight against the saloon, as police officer, he shut the lid down tight and has kept it down.

If the voters of Bedford County elect Mr. Benner to the office of Register and Recorder, they will have an efficient and genial officer who will discharge the duties of the office with justice and satisfaction.

Who Are They?

In response to the inquiry, "Who are Baker and May, the Republican candidates for Poor Director?" we would say that Mr. Baker is the same man who once served as County Commissioner. His name was on the voucher for that $500 fee which was given to the County Solicitor for doing work for which he was paid a salary.

Mr. May is a court house official and has been for a number of years. The fact that he would make a good purchasing agent, is a good judge of bacon, is not sufficient recommendation to elect him to a post at the alms house, for butchering season comes about the time of November Court and he would have to neglect one or the other of the jobs. It would be difficult for him to determine in which capacity he could serve his "party (and himself) right or wrong" to best advantage.

Colvin-Smelker

Wednesday morning in Harrisburg Mr. Michael Schell Colvin of Sulphur Springs and Miss Lena Marie Smelker of Bedford were united in marriage by Rev. A. Lawrence Miller. They are now on a trip to Washington, Philadelphia and Atlantic City.

Mr. Colvin is one of the proprietors of the White Sulphur Springs Hotel and held in high esteem, his bride being an accomplished young woman and a prominent member of Bedford's social circles.

OVER THE HILLS AT THE POOR HOUSE

How Affairs are Conducted Under Republican Rule.

Editor Gazette:—More evidence that the Bedford County Alms House has been operated for the benefit of the few at the expense of the taxpayers—is coming to light, and the vicious system of county expenditures under Republican misrule is so plainly evident that "he who runs may read."

Every taxpayer in the county should notice in last week's Gazette of the suit of Joseph P. Imler, Sheriff, now Republican candidate for Treasurer, against the county for the transfer of the insane inmates from the Alms House to the State Insane Hospital at Harrisburg. If the instructions of the State Lunacy Commission to Dr. H. L. Orth, superintendent of the Harrisburg Insane Hospital, had been obeyed the twenty-four insane persons might have been transferred to Harrisburg without one penny of expense to the taxpayers of Bedford County. All insane departments at Alms Houses are under the supervision of the State Lunacy Commission, and when our Alms House failed to meet the requirements, orders were given our Directors of the Poor to abandon this department and instructions were given to Dr. Orth to send attendants and nurses for the removal of our insane and our Directors were so notified.

But if orders had been obeyed fees would have been lost to some of the faithful. Of course, the taxpayers would have been saved the bill for the lunacy commission, and the large bill paid Sheriff Imler, but our office holders motto seems to be "The taxpayers be damned." And notice, fellow taxpayers, that one item in the bill of the lunacy commission is for M. J. Diehl, witness, one day, $1.50; this same M. J. Diehl being at that very time Steward of the Alms House receiving a salary from the county. Another item is Dr. A. C. Wolf for fees and expenses of conveyance to Alms House (his own horse and buggy) $11.50; this same Dr. Wolf being at that very time the physician at the Alms House, receiving a salary from the county. A third item is Harry C. James, stenographic notes and transcribing same, $9.45; this same Attorney James being at that very time the attorney for the Directors of the Poor and receiving a salary from the county. Taxpayer.

NEVIN DIEHL

Capable Business Man, Candidate for Commissioner.

Nevin Diehl, a Democratic candidate for County Commissioner, was born in Colerain Township on October 20, 1850, and has resided in this county all his life. He was born and raised on a farm.

When about 22 years of age Mr. Diehl engaged in the stock business with his father, Henry P. Diehl, and has continued in the business to this time. His extensive stock dealing has been of great value to the farmers of the county, with whom he has left many dollars. His best recommendation is found in the high esteem in which he is held by the hundreds of farmers with whom he has dealt, all of whom regard and speak of him as an honest and upright man.

Mr. Diehl became a member of the Reformed Church at the age of 14 and has been a consistent and useful member. He has served 12 years as Deacon of his church, eight as Elder and 13 as Trustee and has been leader of the choir for 13 years.

Mr. Diehl has served his township two terms as School Director and eleven years as Supervisor.

Nevin Diehl is well qualified to fill the office of County Commissioner; he is capable and honest, and along with his business qualifications, he possesses the "backbone" to do what he feels to be his duty.

He will make a safe and conservative official and he will be appreciated by those who bear the burden of taxation.

If Brumbaugh and Cessna are elected Directors of the Poor there will be things happen "over the hills at the Poor House." They are clean and capable men and merit the support of all voters who have the interests of the county at heart and desire that business methods be employed in conducting the affairs of that institution.

AN ESTIMATE

Mr. Guyer as Prothonotary From a Republican Standpoint.

The following article is self-explanatory. It was published in the Bedford Inquirer, the originator of the motto "My party right or wrong, but still my party," and it was sent broadcast over the county as a circular letter. Look it over! Here it is:

To the Republican Voters of Bedford County.

I am a candidate for the office of Prothonotary at the Primary on September 30. My opponent, A. S. Guyer, seems to advance but one reason why he should again be nominated, viz: that he be accorded a second term. He is the only Republican elected to that office who opposed a second term, when in 1905, while his father was yet County Treasurer, the best paying office in the gift of the voters of Bedford County, he became a candidate for the office of Prothonotary and by circular letters and otherwise, opposed E. Howard Blackburn for a second term, and failing to defeat him, engendered such animosity and feeling in the party ranks, that Mr. Blackburn was defeated at the fall election. With one term in this office, which is all he was willing to accord Mr. Blackburn, father and son combined will have had six years of the best office holding in Bedford County, not taking into consideration that my opponent was his father's deputy treasurer. There should be some limit to family office holding.

None of my family has ever held a county office, though they have been consistent Republicans and when their country needed their services volunteered for its defense. It would surely be bad politics to renominate Mr. Guyer for Prothonotary, at this time when his father has a pending action in the courts against the county for fees as Treasurer, on his appeal from a settlement by the County Auditors.

During the first two years of my opponent's term he paid into the County Treasury, after deducting his salary and clerk hire, the sum of $393.13, while during the same period of Mr. Blackburn's term there was paid into said treasury the sum of $1,089.49. The office records indicating a larger volume of business during Mr. Guyer's term than during Mr. Blackburn's term, the conclusion must be that the county pays for Mr. Guyer's absence from the office.

The last two March Arguments Courts were apparently held in session several additional days at the expense of the taxpayers, hearing and determining exceptions to legal proceedings, on account of my opponent having failed to advertise the same according to law, as other officers have done, and this mainly because my opponent does not give his, as I pledge I shall, if nominated and elected, my entire time to the duties of the office, it being notorious that nearly one-half of his time is spent out of his office, engaged in other pursuits from which he boasts he earns his living. I shall be satisfied to earn my living in the office and give the tax payers to whom my services belong, my entire time.

I learn that my opponent attempts, either through himself or certain of his supporters, to reflect upon my habits and qualifications. My life is an open book and I challenge investigation. The Bedford Bar, of which I have been a member for more than eight years, knows my qualifications and fitness for this office, and I have been heartily endorsed by the Republican members thereof in my petition for nomination, and stand on my own merits.

In this office many legal questions arise and it is fitting, and in some counties required, that the incumbent be a lawyer. I am thoroughly familiar with all the work of the office, having served as a clerk therein for a period of almost three years since my graduation from a College of Law.

I have served my party whenever my services were needed. I have been honored by being Vice Chairman and Secretary of the County Committee, and stand ready to answer its calls in the future, believing that I can render better service in the future than in the past.

If nominated and elected I shall conduct the office so that neither my party nor my friends shall be called upon to apologize for my conduct therein, and I shall at all times be at my post of duty to serve all the people to the best of my ability, to my own credit and the relief of the tax payers from errors arising from absence or inattention to duty.

I trust I shall receive your hearty support, and thanking you for what you may do for me, I am,

Sincerely yours,

Charles R. Mock.

GEORGE W. DERRICK

Efficient Official, Should Be Again Elected Prothonotary.

GEORGE W. DERRICK

George W. Derrick was born at Newport, Perry County, forty-six years ago. He received his early training in the public schools and at the New Bloomfield Academy, after which he took a course at Allen's Business College, Elmira, N. Y. He came to this county in 1883 and taught school in Liberty Township. In 1884 he became night operator in the office of the dispatcher of the H. & B. T. R. R. at Saxton. In 1885 he was made agent at Mt. Dallas and a few months later was transferred to Everett, remaining there until 1904 when he was elected cashier of the First National Bank of Saxton.

In 1905 Mr. Derrick was elected Prothonotary of Bedford County and filled the office to the entire satisfaction of the people of the county. By common consent he was one of the most efficient Prothonotaries the county has ever had.

On retiring from office he was elected cashier of the Everett Bank, which position he holds today. He consented to become the candidate on the fusion ticket after long hesitating; it was a case of the office seeking the man.

A vote to return Mr. Derrick to the office of Prothonotary is a vote for the return of business methods in the office.

SAMUEL J. BRUMBAUGH

Honest and Progressive Farmer; Candidate for Poor Director.

Samuel J. Brumbaugh, Democratic candidate for Poor Director, was born in Liberty Township in 1866. He is a son of the late Jacob Brumbaugh and was reared on a farm. His whole life has been spent near the place of his birth, and he is at present one of Liberty Township's most enterprising and successful farmers. For twelve years he was in the employ of the Colonial Iron Company as track foreman.

Mr. Brumbaugh was twice married, his first wife being Phoebe Switzer, who died ten years ago. He since married Elizabeth Gates. His home has always been noted for its hospitality and good cheer toward all.

As an evidence of the esteem in which he is held, he was called to the ministry of the Church of the Brethren fourteen years ago and has been faithful to the trust committed to his hand. His uprightness and energy are known far and wide.

Mr. Brumbaugh has been School Director of his township for three terms, his re-election hinging on the matter of wise and conservative policies. He is a man of excellent judgment and has the power of being effective in whatever he undertakes. He stands for absolute honesty and fairness of administration in every project.

If elected to the office for which he has been accorded the nomination the voters of Bedford County may expect a clean and wise administration of the affairs connected with the care of the unfortunate of the county.

Joseph Boyer, Aged 96

Joseph Boyer, perhaps the oldest person in Bedford County, died at the home of his son-in-law, Walker Ferguson, at Pleasantville Friday night of last week of diseases incident to old age.

Mr. Ferguson was a millwright by trade but had farmed in Sloans Hollow for a number of years until about two years ago when he went to Pleasantville to make his home with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson. Had he lived until January 12, 1912, he would have been 96 years of age.

The funeral services were conducted on Sunday by Rev. H. C. Salem and interment was made at Messiah Church at Cessna.

The District Attorney's Office

This office has not escaped the attention of the salary raisers. A few years ago the office was self-supporting, the compensation of the District Attorney being paid out of fees in cases prosecuted by the office. It was placed in the class of salaried officials by the Legislature in 1905 and the salary fixed to be paid out of the County Treasury in this county, at $600 per year. The last session of the Legislature increased this compensation to $800 per year, although from the records it appears that the fees which are turned over into the County Treasury, which would have gone to that official under the old fee system, would not have been sufficient to cover the $600 salary, and Mr. Taxpayer must again pay the bill.

E. M. Pennell, Esq., who, in company with Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Eyer, was in attendance at the meeting of the Potomac Synod of the Reformed Church at Hickory, N. C., returned to Bedford on Wednesday. Rev. and Mrs. Eyer will arrive in Bedford this evening.

Temperance Prayer Meeting

On Wednesday evening the prayer service in the Methodist Church was of a temperance nature. Following the usual opening exercises by the pastor and congregation a report of the State Woman's Christian Temperance Union Convention held at Warren, Pa., Oct. 6-10, was given by the County President Miss L. D. Shuck and Corresponding Secretary Miss Etta V. Shires, who, with Mrs. Elizabeth Stoler of Saxton and Miss Reeve of Schellsburg, were delegates from Bedford County.

Reports showed the state organization in a most prosperous condition. 131 new unions were organized this year; 66 counties were represented in convention, each vying with the other in practical work done on their various districts.

The state slogan is: "Eternal Vigilance" until State and National Prohibition is secured!

The Sunday evening address by Hon. Richard P. Hobson of Alabama was a masterpiece, the speaker electrifying his audience of over two thousand people with his power of eloquence. Mr. Hobson stands uncompromisingly for Universal Prohibition.

On their home-coming Mrs. Stoler, Miss Reeve and Miss Shuck visited Toronto, Can., Buffalo and Niagara Falls, attending several sessions of the Fourth Ecumenical Methodist Conference held in Toronto from October 4th to 17th.

A Time to Laugh

"Joseph P. Imler, Republican candidate for Treasurer, served as Sheriff a few years ago and proved himself a worthy and competent official. Mr. Imler has always labored in the interest of the taxpayers and will give the people a satisfactory term as Treasurer of the county."—Bedford Inquirer, October 20.

If there is a time to laugh and a time to weep, take your laugh now, then turn to page three and see how Mr. Imler "has always labored in the interests of the taxpayers."

WAR DECLARED

Catarrh Germs Must Be Conquered or Health Will Be Destroyed.

If you have catarrh you must vanquish an army of persistent, destructive microbes before you can get rid of it.

You might as well choose your weapons, declare war and annihilate this army of catarrh germs right now.

Stomach catarrh won't kill them; neither will sprays or douches.

HYOMEI, a pleasant, antiseptic, germ destroying air breathed over the entire membrane will put catarrh germs out of business in short order.

HYOMEI (pronounced as High-o-me) is guaranteed by F. W. Jordan to end catarrh, asthma, bronchitis, coughs, colds and croup, or money back. If you own a little HYOMEI hard rubber pocket inhaler you can get a separate bottle of HYOMEI for only 50 cents. If you haven't an inhaler buy a complete outfit that only costs $1.00.

SEASONS ARE CHANGING

Second Crops of Grapes, Beans and Strawberries Being Harvested.

Copious rains have about changed the seasons in Westmoreland County this fall. Second crops are numerous and of a respectable quantity. Frank Crise, Sr., of near Kecksburg has a second crop of grapes in his vineyard and the bunches are not confined to a straggling bunch here and there but are to be found in clusters all over the vineyard. His vines produced a large yield of early grapes, and with the continuous rains a second crop started and is now in full yield.

The continued warm weather together with the showers have induced the growth of peanuts and oranges in a successful manner in the county. Grant Bitner of Kecksburg has been experimenting with peanuts vines for some time and in his garden has some vines this fall that are growing fine specimens of peanuts. As long as frost keeps away Mr. Bitner will allow his peanut crop to mature as far as possible.

On the same street in Kecksburg with the Bitner peanut garden can be seen an orange tree on which are hanging several oranges, all well formed and well developed.

In a Greensburg garden a second crop of lima beans are rapidly forming into a condition for the dinner table at an early date. Strawberry blossoms and real strawberries are not an uncommon sight in strawberry patches. Peach trees are blooming as well as other fruit trees and bushes but weather seers look for a cold snap at any time to put an end to the summer growth of vegetables and fruit trees at this unseasonable time.

A new and decidedly good looking crop of dandelions have made their appearance, demonstrating that they can come back and shine forth in all their pristine glory.

THE TEST OF MERIT

Bedford People Are Given Convincing Proof.

No better test of any article can be made than the test of time and this is particularly true of a kidney medicine. Doan's Kidney Pills have stood this test and stood it well. What better proof of the merits of this remedy could you demand, than the statement of a Bedford resident who has been cured and has stayed cured?

Read the following:
Mrs. S. S. Whetstone, 233 West John Street, Bedford, Pa., says: "I suffered severely from pains in my back and I always felt nervous and depressed. At times I was so dizzy that I could hardly see. After taking Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at John R. Dull's Drug Store, I felt better and as I continued their use all symptoms of my trouble gradually disappeared. I am grateful to Doan's Kidney Pills for the cure they effected." (Statement given October 14, 1907.)

Two Years Later

When Mrs. Whetstone was interviewed on November 15, 1909, she said: "I have had no need of a kidney remedy since I took Doan's Kidney Pills. I willingly confirm all I have previously said in favor of this preparation."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

THE AUDOBON SASSIETY.

They met to talk against the cats That kill the birds so sweet That warble in the cherry tree And all the day go "Tweet!"

"The cats must go!" yelled Mrs. Snow. Those women nodded hats All hummed with pretty birdie wings That were not killed by cats.

"Yes, kill them all!" cried Mrs. Small. "They kill the birds, they do!" She wore a lovely bird graveyard Upon her lovely hair too.

And thus those Audobons, enraged, Were making cat fur fly When Mrs. Snow glanced down below And there a mouse did spy.

"Help!" "Murder!" "Call the cat!" Those women—where were they? Some perched upon the chandelier; Some fainted dead away.

Then mamma cat came bounding in And nipped up mousey quick She bore him to her kittens They gobbled him down quick.

Those females came down off the perch, And each one voted aye— That rather than have horrid mice The pussy cats may stay.

Thank God that we men aren't birds With fancy tails and wings! These women sick would kill us quick For millinery things. C. M. BARNITZ.

PURE AIR AND SUNSHINE ESSENTIAL.

Pure, fresh air and sunshine are nature's great remedial agents, blood purifiers, disinfectors and general health promoters.

You remember when persons who advocated fresh air for humans and slept with bedroom windows up summer and winter were called "cold air cranks." People in general now sleep with fresh air around them, consumptives sleep in the open, and schools are conducted in the cold air. It pays better to be called a cold air crank than a corpse or a consumptive.

There was a day when tight poultry houses were the great and only. Every window was shut at night in winter, and many kept fires to warm the roosters. Today hens almost sleep and work in the open air summer and winter, their houses simply protecting from storm, the muslin front before scratch floor and roost protecting and affording fresh air.

Pure air without drafts has done away with cold, catarrh, roup and bronchial troubles in general in such flocks.

This improved ventilation has chased the bad smells and conditions that made the sweating house with its deadly, frosty walls.

Sunshine also is as necessary for hens as humans. It destroys germs, keeps the house dry, warms the fowl, gives life to the feathers, light for work, keeps the flock optimistic and chases the rats, mice and mites that degenerate and propagate in gloom.

The tight house with high little windows has been consigned to the fossiliferous age with the poultry pessimists. Windows are now down to the floor or the fronts out, to catch all the sunshine and ozone, and these are necessary if flocks are to possess stamina, beget strong offspring and pay a bon ton profit.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

When your chickens dig down deep into their feathers it's nearly always a case of lots of lice. A peep at the fluff will show enough.

The Fiji and Sandwich islands are becoming prominent poultry producers, and experts are moving there to promote the industry. They once made sandwiches of the ministerial missionaries, but they now serve them chicken sandwiches.

Certain poultry dealers are sending out printed matter to poultry raisers, describing how to fatten, kill, dress, cool and pack poultry. There is so much poultry spoiled in preparing fowls for market that this plan has been adopted to prevent it.

Many introduce deadly blackhead among their turkeys by buying stock where the disease exists and by not quarantining purchased birds for inspection. We have seen the most perfect looking birds develop this plague a few weeks after purchase.

The territory between Philadelphia and Trenton, N. J., is a great capon district, one firm last December and January purchasing 147,153 pounds of juicy capons from the farmers of that region, who received as high as 30 cents a pound for the big birds dressed.

The English have a sick way to catch rats. They take a deep tub or cask, fill it half full of water and cover the vessel with brown paper, pasted down around the edges. For several nights feed is placed on this false top, and after the rats have been feeding awhile a T slit is made in the middle of this top, and the visiting rats tumble in. Their squeals attract others, and they tumble in too.

Those fanciers who gunned all summer after neighbors' cats may be glad they do not live in the reign of the Welsh Howell the Good, 938 A. D. In those days "if anybody stole or killed the cat that guarded the prince's granaries he was to forfeit a milch ewe and lamb or as much wheat as when poured on the body, suspended by the tail; the head touching the floor, would form a heap high enough to cover the tip of her tail."

Missouri, dubbed "Show Me Land," and she certainly is showing the land states how to lead the poultry procession. Recently gave a five acre farm to the person who sent in the best poultry house plan and best method of poultry management. She has now started an egg laying contest that is to last a year. It is national in its scope. Fanciers in general are invited to send hens to compete, and splendid prizes are offered to winners.

WHY HESITATE?

An Offer That Involves no Money Risk If You Accept It.

We are so positive our remedy will completely relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish it free of all cost if it fails.

Constipation is commonly caused by weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine. To expect a cure you must therefore tone up and strengthen those organs and restore them to healthier activity.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our guarantee. They are eaten like candy, and are particularly good for children. They seem to act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels. They apparently have a neutral action on the other organs. They do not purge or cause other inconvenience. We will refund your money if they do not overcome chronic or habitual constipation and thus aid to relieve the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments. Try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Three sizes, 10c, 25c, and 50c. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. F. W. Jordan.

Exhibit of Bedford County Apples

A. W. Holden & Company of Philadelphia, the commission house which handled last year and is again handling apples for the Shippers Association, have offered to specially prepare an exhibit of our apples in their warehouse, advertising the exhibit at their own expense.

A part of the warehouse will be cleared of all else, tables and other places fixed, and this entire space devoted to an exhibit of Bedford County apples. There will be no expense for us at all. And after the exhibit is over the apples will be sold and the proceeds of sale, less the usual 10% commission, will be sent to each exhibitor.

We think this the biggest forward step yet taken to get our fruit before the buying public.

We are heartily in favor of the exhibits called for the State Horticultural Meeting, and urge every grower who has extra fine fruit to send an exhibit there. But in one sense this exhibit is even more important; as it is intended to show our fruit to the people who are continually buying, and to show them that we have fruit of the highest quality and color.

You do not have to be a member of the Fruit Shippers' Association to send in an exhibit. We will be glad to get all the new members we can, for the more members we have the greater consideration we can compel in any market. But that has nothing whatever to do with this exhibit, which is made solely to show Bedford County apples and boom this section as a great fruit growing country.

Fruit sent ought to be perfect, that is, free from sting, scale and fungus marks; and ought to be as highly colored as you can select. And it should be gotten ready and shipped soon.

In order to have the exhibit as well balanced and as complete as possible, it is better that those who wish to help in making it either write or phone to Mr. A. C. Richards of Schellsburg, or to A. B. Ross of the same place, and get directions for putting up and shipping. In case of any especially handsome fruit, Mr. Ross has promised to pack it in the standard bushel boxes, which can be had in small quantities from Mr. Richards at about 15c each.

Most of the fruit will go in barrels. And barrels can be made of several varieties, say a bushel each of three varieties; though of course solid barrels of a single kind will be very welcome. The larger, more perfect and more varied this exhibit, the greater will be the permanent effect on Philadelphia.

All fruit will be sold for the shipper and money sent to him as soon as exhibit closes down.

Don't hold back and expect a few to do all this work. It is time that all of us put in some good fruit for the benefit of this section. A few years of good campaigning, and we will not be at the mercy of buyers at 60c per 100 pounds. We will be shipping fine fruit and getting what it is really worth.

Address all communications to Mr. Richards or to Mr. Ross, and do it at once.

Bedford County Fruit Shippers' Association.

To Transform a City Into a World's Fair

In their effort to make the Panama Canal Exposition in 1915 the "biggest show on earth," the people of San Francisco have thrown their modesty to the winds and instead of placing the show in San Francisco they have put San Francisco in the show. That is just what the plans adopted for the exposition mean as the exposition buildings have been placed here and there throughout the city so that to visit them all, the guest within the city gates must traverse the entire municipal area. In other words San Francisco itself will be the Panama Exposition. The plan that has been adopted is probably the most unique ever devised, and is described in detail, with illustration, in the November Popular Mechanics Magazine.

THRIVING ARIZONA TOWN

Mrs. McCallion Much Pleased With Life in the Southwest.

Winslow, Ariz., October 25, 1911. Editor of The Gazette, Bedford, Pa.

Dear Sir:—I must confess that I have not been faithful in keeping a promise made to my friends, which was that they might expect to hear from me through your paper. I will say this much for this far-away country that we are having lovely summer weather. The skies are sunny and I can truly say I have never passed one day in the two months since my arrival here that the sun has not shone during some part of the day. They tell me that the winters are all such weather as we are having now, a little chilly in the evening and mornings. One feels like hunting a warm corner in the morning, but when the sun comes up, the air is soon warmed and becomes like summer. This is surely a wonderful country for scenery. The vast landscape with mountain ranges and sand hills is a wonder to behold. The great formations have been wonders to many a visitor. I will here speak of one I have gone to see, a large bowl, as it were. It is called the "Punch Bowl." It stands high and holds a quantity of water on the top. It is such a curiosity that it is visited by many sightseers. The mountains of Utah are visible here. One would think them not far away; I was asked how far away did I think they were; "Oh," I said, "about 25 miles, I guess." When told 75 miles was the distance, I found my guess was far short.

This is a very busy town; no one unemployed. The Great Santa Fe Railroad holds the most important part of the work. Almost every one, who is a resident here, is an employee of it. This is what boosts the town and brings in the cash to enrich the place. It is time that some persons living in a place like this, with all classes and nationalities, follow railroading, as the managers are all fine people and are making good money. It has surely been the making of the men who came here. Years ago when no railroading was thought of and in the advancing of civilization, men who came here as "call boys" are now wealthy and can ride in their autos. One would think they made their wealth in a California gold mine instead of by close attention to "Greely's advice."

The Bedford Gazette is a welcome visitor to our home each week and is a source of much news we otherwise would not get. I see the fair has been held there. This country, not being a farming community, no fairs are held in Navajo County, but the past three days the people have been celebrating the Frontier, with races between cowboys and Indians, and it certainly did have the appearance of Frontier life. Hundreds of Indians were here with their squaws, and papooses strapped on boards, wearing the blankets pinned over their shoulders, hatless, hair never trimmed and faces never washed. To one who never saw an Indian, he would almost have said hold fast the top of his head at the sight of them, but they are a peaceful set in general. They are living on a reservation some distance from this town, but come in here to sell their wares. They certainly do make fine pottery and weave lovely rugs and blankets.

I should like to tell you of a great many things I have seen since I came here, but think this will be all for the present. Very truly yours, Mary A. McCallion.

Fruit Soils

The relative value of limestone soil as compared with shaly and sandy soils for the purposes of fruit growing is often discussed. To an inquirer who writes asking whether limestone soil is best for growing peach and apple trees, H. A. Surface, State Zoologist, Harrisburg, gives the following instructions:

"Replying to your letter asking if I would advise the planting of peach and apple trees in limestone soil in the Lebanon Valley, and using the land for general truck purposes, I beg to say that I would recommend this for the apple and pear, but I fear it would be too fertile to grow peach trees with the best results."

"Limestone will produce a very rank peach tree that will probably give more of its strength and energy to growth and not enough to bearing, and will not give fruits the best color. Limestone soil is the best soil for apples and pears, while sandy or shaly soil is best for peach. Also, another point depends upon the elevation for the peach. It is elevated so valley so that there is little ready air drainage, it would not be so good for the peach. It is elevated so that the cold air would readily drain off in one direction or another, it would be better. To answer your question in full one should see the entire condition."

Gazette "want" ads bring quick results.

The Boy Who Wanted Good Roads

In "Interesting People," in the November American Magazine, E. L. Farrington writes of J. H. Hale, the "Peach King." When Mr. Hale was a small boy, there was a mortgage on his mother's house. Young Hale bought some peach trees and just as the mortgage was to be foreclosed he sold his first crop and paid it off. Mr. Farrington writes:

"After that the Hale boy was much in the local public eye. He went to town meeting one year and asked for a better road between Glastonbury and Hartford. The conservative tobacco farmers frowned on the forward youth. Next year he was on hand again, however, this time to plead for permission to have built only ten rods of good road at the town's expense. He was politely informed that boys were made to be seen and not heard and went home disappointed once more. But the next year he bobbed up a third time, more determined than ever, and evinced a disposition to talk all day. On that occasion his persistency and filibustering tactics were too much for the town fathers, and they consented to the appointment of a committee, with young Hale as chairman, to lay ten rods of modern roadway; telling them to build it anywhere they chose, but naturally expecting that Hale would select the section in front of his own farm. Instead, he picked out the worst section of the road, at least four miles from his home."

"When the next spring came, this piece of roadway was like an oasis in a desert of mud, and there was little further opposition to road improvement in that part of the Connecticut valley."

Vindicating Mrs. O'Leary's Cow

It has been a long time coming, but justice is sure though slow-footed. Mrs. O'Leary and all the other O'Learys were in bed when the great Chicago fire broke our forty years ago. The milking had been done three hours before. Such is the statement of Mr. Ahern, the only living reported who covered the fire story. There had been a later milking, to be sure, and by a woman who may have got on the wrong side of the cow where studious artists usually place her. But the cow did not kick. Mr. Ahern vouches for this on the strength of Mrs. O'Leary's statement—she then being in bed. There was a lantern or lighted lamp, but it was held by another woman, who thought she heard some one coming and dropped it in a fright. So the fire started. The innocence of the cow is established.

As Rome built itself up on the story of Romulus suckled by a wolf, so Chicago for the glory of its rising from destruction has all these years been cultivating the fable of Mrs. O'Leary's kicking cow. Now at last the cow is vindicated and Chicago's attempt to imitate Rome is exposed. —New York World.

Vicarious Candy.

A group of children were playing in a gutter. A passerby walked slowly, watching the active preparations of a "little mother," aged about seven, who was marshaling her "charges" into order, apparently in preparation for some urban excursion. Something had gone wrong, and one small kid was howling.

"Shut your noise, Tommy Higgins, and be good this minute!" admonished the motherly, with a premissory smack. "If you don't stop like I tell you I'll leave you right here in the mud gutter. You can't go wild us till ye closes yer noise and be's a good boy. Do you know where we're goin'?" Well, we're goin' in the next block to the candy factory to smell the candies cookin'. And do you yer know what they're makin' today? Well, it's chocolate creams and peppermint." —New York Press.

Bride Prize

By IVAN TROGLOFF

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

A young man, evidently a traveler, was driven up to an inn in Smolensk, Russia, stepped out of the sleigh that bore him and went inside. After engaging a room of the landlord he threw off his long overcoat lined with fur, went to a fire of blazing logs and warmed his hands, then, turning his eye, was caught by a notice tacked on the wall. It read:

The fourth drawing for the year of the matrimonial lottery will take place at the town hall tomorrow evening, Nov. 12, at 9 o'clock.

The stranger turned to the landlord and asked for an explanation of the strange notice.

"In this place," said the landlord, "four times a year we have a lottery. One of our girls is put up as a prize. Five thousand tickets are sold at a ruble a ticket. The holder of the winning ticket is bound to marry the girl, the money serving as her dowry. If, however, she will not have him they may divide the money between them. In case the man who wins is already married he may turn over the prize to any friend he may select."

"Is not this a singular custom?"

"That may be, but it is a very good one. We have in Smolensk every year a new lot of girls that have come to a marriageable age who are without dowries. The lottery provides for four of them."

"And who is the prize for the present drawing?"

"Sonia Orloff."

The stranger started.

"Do you know the girl?" asked the landlord.

"Yes. No. The name is familiar to me. But there are others of this name. How should I know her, I being a stranger in Smolensk?"

"She has not always lived here."

"Are the chances all taken?"

"I have heard that not half have been disposed of. The girl is not well known. She keeps aloof and is known to be averse to taking a husband in this way. But one of our philanthropic citizens will pay for all chances not taken just before the drawing."

The next evening the town hall was crowded with those who had come to see the drawing. The prize was present, a girl with the fair hair and eyes of a Russian. She looked sad—indeed, more like one to be sacrificed than to be made a bride. Before the drawing the philanthropic citizen the landlord had spoken of asked how many chances remained unsold that he might pay for them. He and those about him were surprised at being informed that all tickets had been sold. This they considered remarkable since the day before not over 1,500 had been taken.

A great deal of time was taken up preparing for the drawing. Tickets had been made bearing the names of the 1,500 who had subscribed, but since noon of the day of the drawing 3,500 more must be made to complete the 5,000. A dozen persons were engaged in an anteroom making tickets while those in the hall waited. The latter spent the time chatting and strolling back and forth before the prize, ogling her. On her face was the melancholy of those deformed persons whose deformities are exhibited in museums. This set the spectators wondering, for at these drawings the prize girl usually looked proud and happy.

It was quite late when the door of the anteroom was opened and a basket full of bits of paper, on which were written names of those who had subscribed for chances, was brought in. The contents of the basket were emptied into a huge wheel, which was revolved, and when it stopped a lid was opened and the master of ceremonies, blindfolded, put in his hand and drew forth a name. There was a breathless silence till the announcement. Then he announced:

"Paul Zabieski!"

All eyes were turned upon Sonia Orloff to observe the effect the name would have upon her. She was sitting where she could readily be seen. Up to the speaking of the name of the man who had won her she seemed indifferent, but the moment the words rang out in the hall a change came over her. She started. A look of surprise came into her eyes. A rose tint started in each cheek and spread itself all over her face. A light came into her eye. But most noticeable of all was a look of wonder.

The wonder was reflected in the faces of those who looked upon hers. What did this change in her mean? Who was this Paul Zabieski? No one present seemed to know him.

From the outside of those surrounding the wheel and the prize a young man came forward, approached the girl, knelt before her and, taking her hand in his, kissed it. Then he turned to the others:

"I am Paul Zabieski. In Poland Sonia Orloff and I grew up together and became lovers. But her parents removed to this place. I have become a successful merchant and came here yesterday to find her. I subscribed for the remaining chances, giving me more than three to one to win. Tomorrow the money subscribed by others will be returned to them."

It was not necessary for the bride to speak her acceptance of the husband provided for her by the lottery. Her face was beaming. Taking the arm of Zabieski, the pair walked out of the hall amid the plaudits of those present.

MAKING UMBRELLAS.

The Way These Necessary Articles Are Put Together.

In most umbrella factories the task of turning out ribs and stems is left to other factories making a specialty of those parts. These are sent to the manufacturer, and the man whose work it is to assemble the parts inserts a bit of wire into the small holes at the end of the ribs, draws them together about the main rod and adjusts the ferrule.

In cutting the cloth or silk seventy-five thicknesses or thereabouts are arranged upon a table at which skilled operators work. In one department there are girls who operate hemming machines. A thousand yards of hemmed goods is but a day's work for one of these girls. The machines doing this job attain a speed of some 3,000 revolutions a minute. After the hemming has been done the cloth or silk is cut into triangular pieces with a knife, as before, but with a pattern laid upon the cloth. The next operation is the sewing of the triangular pieces together by machinery.

The covers and frames are now ready to be brought together. In all there are twenty-one places where the cover is to be attached to the frame. The handle is next glued on, and the umbrella is ready for pressing and inspection.

Uses for Borax

It softens water.
It soothes the skin.
It is valuable in laundering.
Put in water, it saves soap and labor, but it is not added to the rinsing water.

Three tablespoonfuls of borax should be allowed to a boiler of water.

In starching linen the addition of a teaspoonful of powdered borax to a quart of water is advisable.

Porcelain pans may be whitened by adding borax to hot water. Add more and scour if necessary.

Paint is cleaned and preserved by being washed with a cloth dipped in a pail of water in which two tablespoonfuls of borax have been dissolved.

If paint be very soiled a little soap may be rubbed on the cloth, the whole being carefully rinsed with another cloth.

JOSEPH P. IMLER

A Glance at the Record of the Republican Candidate for County Treasurer When He Was Sheriff of Bedford County.

When Joseph P. Imler was a candidate on the Republican ticket for Sheriff of Bedford County several years ago, The Gazette, though advocating the election of his opponent, said not one word derogatory to Mr. Imler. He was elected to the office and his official career while serving as Sheriff is now a matter of record and may be examined by any citizen who cares to do so.

After his term of office had expired he appealed from the report of the County Auditors and endeavored to collect from the County of Bedford—to take from your pockets, Taxpayers of Bedford County—ONE THOUSAND ONE HUNDRED NINETEEN DOLLARS AND FOURTEEN CENTS for taking twenty-four unfortunate inmates of the Insane Department at the Alms House to the Asylum at Harrisburg. Is this the stripe of man that you, Mr. Voter, wish to see placed in the office of County Treasurer?

Below we give the court record of his suit against the county and his itemized bill as it appears of record for transferring the unfortunate insane to Harrisburg:

COPY OF DOCKET ENTRIES.

vs.
The County of Bedford.

In the Court of Common Pleas of Bedford County.
No. 243 September Term, 1909.

Appeal by Plaintiff, as Ex-Sheriff, from the Report of County Auditors, per appeal and bond filed April 5, 1909. April 19, 1909, Request of the County of Bedford for framing an issue filed. May 26, 1909, issue awarded and Joseph P. Imler is made Plaintiff and County of Bedford Defendant. See Argument Docket No. 4, page 31. July 15, 1909, Rule to declare Ex 2 copies. January 3, 1910, Alias Rule to declare Ex 2 copies. January 31, 1910, Plaintiff's statement filed, and claims the sum of $1,119.14 for fees for conveying 24 inmates of the Alms House to the Insane Department at Harrisburg. March 10, 1910, Defendant's Pleas filed. April 18, 1910, Amended Pleas filed. April —, 1910, Continued. September —, 1910, Continued. And now November 3, 1910, the above case compromised and settled, the County of Bedford to pay the Plaintiff $469.20, which is accepted in full compromise and settlement of all matters in dispute between the parties, Plaintiff not to file any costs for witnesses, and the Defendant to pay the record costs.

It will be noted from the above, all of which is copied from court records, that Mr. Imler attempted to collect mileage at the rate of 10c per mile just as though he had taken the unfortunates to the asylum one at a time, whereas he made but one trip.

Ponder, Mr. Voter, the figures, before you cast your vote!

Having 24 persons to look after it was right that he should have a number of assistants to care for those in his charge, but when he attempted to collect 24 times $31.20 as mileage for making one trip, he stepped beyond all limits! Then, too, he collected 6c per mile for each of the patients, who only made the trip one way, and transportation on any railroad on earth may be gotten for 3c per mile.

Mr. Imler made the appeal from the Auditors' report in April 1909, but the matter was not speedily settled and forgotten as he desired; in May of that year an issue was awarded; his statement was filed in January of the following year; the defendant's pleas were filed in March, and amended pleas in April, when the case was continued, and it was again continued in September. This continuing was throwing the matter too close to the present campaign; he had started to electioneer for the Republican nomination for County Treasurer, and in November 1910 he settled the case for $469.20, which was a deduction of $649.94 from his bill. What admission on his part was his willingness to settle for $649.94 less than his bill?

What think you, Mr. Voter, of the matter?

John Fletcher, the Democratic nominee for the place, is a man whose integrity cannot be questioned, and he is qualified to fill the position with credit to himself and his county.

For whom will you vote for County Treasurer.

A Poor Weak Woman

As she is termed, will endure bravely and patiently agonies which a strong man would give way under. The fact is women are more patient than they ought to be under such troubles.

Every woman ought to know that she may obtain the most experienced medical advice free of charge and in absolute confidence and privacy by writing to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., for many years and has had a wider practical experience in the treatment of women's diseases than any other physician in this country. His medicines are world-famous for their astonishing efficacy.

The most perfect remedy ever devised for weak and delicate women is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG.

SICK WOMEN WELL.

The many and varied symptoms of women's peculiar ailments are fully set forth in Plain English in the People's Medical Adviser (1008 pages), a newly revised and up-to-date Edition of which, cloth-bound, will be mailed free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only. Address as above.

NO BIDDING

Mr. Voter, when you go into the election booth on November 7 to cast your ballot, you will make a mark or marks upon a ballot printed by Reynolds' organ without allowing other printshops to bid. A mark in the Republican square means a continuation of that sort of business methods. Vote the Democratic ticket and put an end to this manner of doing business. If you had a large job of work of your own would you place it without ascertaining what others would charge for the same work?

THE CUNNING HAND

"The riches of a Commonwealth are free, strong minds and hearts of health; And more to her than gold or grain, The cunning hand and cultured brain." When he penned these lines the poet who "was once a barefoot boy" gave to the country a beautiful sentiment, but his reference to "cunning hands" should not be misinterpreted. He did not mean to leave the impression that one possessed of "cunning hands" that would enable him to make molds and pour the molten metal which would make money, is the most desirable citizen, nor does our Government sanction any competition in the manufacture of legal tender. "Each thing in its place is best" But the fact that a man may be cunning ning of hand and steady of nerve in tilting the ladle is no guarantee that he would make a good public official.

STILL ON THE BANNER

In a leading editorial last week the principal organ of the "local annex" of the Pennsylvania Republican machine and the mouthpiece of Lieutenant Governor John M. Reynolds, justifies its selection of "My party right or wrong, but still my party" as the slogan of the present campaign by declaring it to be "the very foundation principle of a Republican form of government."

If the word Republican is used to designate such an administration as Pennsylvania is having and has had for half a century, with few intermissions, under the Quay and Penrose organizations we admit it is true; but if used to apply to such a government as our forefathers established upon this continent, when in Philadelphia that old bell sent its iron music forth "proclaiming liberty throughout the land and to all the inhabitants thereof" it is not true. Such a motto is as repulsive to those in whose breasts there is a patriotic spark as is the appearance of a foreboding black flag, floating from the mast head of a pirate vessel on the high seas, to peaceful merchantmen.

It remains for the voters of Bedford County to say whether conditions shall continue as they are in this county.

Will honest men and patriotic citizens vote to continue the present extravagance and incompetency in public offices by "getting together" with no higher motive than animates the pirate and the anarchist? They go on the theory that "might makes right." Will those who bear the burdens of taxation vote to sanction the raise of 14 2-7 per cent. in the salary of the County Treasurer? Will they by their votes show that they approve of the placing of orders for work with gang organs thus wasting money that might be saved if they would allow bidding on the work?

To the Voters of Bedford County: I want to call your attention to the Primary Election held on the 30th of September, which shows that I received 80 votes more than Mr. Easter. There was an agreement with all the candidates that the man that was the highest on the combined tickets should be the nominee but when Mr. Easter found he had five more votes than I had on the Democratic ticket he refused to come off the ticket as he agreed to do. So, under the fusion agreement, I feel I am legally nominated by the three combined tickets and ask the voters of Bedford County to support me at the coming election, as I am a candidate for the office of County Commissioner. THE ROBIN HOOD OF PENNSYLVANIA

"Lewis the Robber," Who Often Stole From the Rich and Occasionally Gave to the Poor.

In The North American of Sunday, October 29, there will appear a story based upon the life of one of the most interesting characters in Pennsylvania criminal history. This man, "Lewis the Robber," held the star in terror in the early part of the nineteenth century. Yet occasionally he paused in the pursuit of his nefarious business of counterfeiting and highway robbery, cheating when the opportunity presented itself, to fill the role of devoted father and husband and friend of the poor and distressed. He might be termed the Pennsylvania parallel of "Robin Hood." No Pennsylvanian can afford to miss this fascinating recital of the career of this remarkable man.

SEEMED TO FILL THE BILL

Young Suffragette Appeared to the Youth's Mother to Be Suitable as His Wife.

The young suffragette who had in mind on marrying the young man with whom she had fallen in love, approached the young man's mother in fear and trembling. "Can you support my son," asked that lady sternly, "in the style to which he has been accustomed?" "I cannot, madam. He will have to supply all the cash." "Um. Are you able, in spite of your advanced views, to keep him badly in debt?" "I am. That is my specialty." "Do you know how to nurse him if he should fall ill?" "Haven't the remotest idea. My childhood has been spent in attending caucuses." "Hail Will you guarantee to kiss him good-by every morning?" "If I happen to remember it—but I can't guarantee anything." "What time do you expect to come in at night?" "O, anywhere from 12 to 3 in the morning." "Do you rehearse your speeches at home?" "Yes, as a rule." The mother's face relaxed. "We must be cautious in these matters," she said sweetly. "But, on the whole, I think you will do."—Life.

HUMOR IN HIS EXAGGERATION

Jabish Furlong's Recital Illustrates the Characteristic That Makes Maine Stories So Amusing.

Novel and exaggerated smiles and comparisons characterize Maine speech. Instead of such commonplace as "As light as a feather" and "As dark as a pocket," the comparisons are likely to be "Forty pounds lighter than a straw hat" and "As dark as the inside of a cow." And it is this same humorous exaggeration that makes many a Maine story so likeable. Jabish Furlong, who worked for old man McKusick in haying time, had it. "I had the greatest luck out gunning the other day," said Jabish. "I was walking a log across a deep hole in the brook, when I see a squirrel up a spruce on the funder bank. I up right there and fired, and I fetched down the squirrel and a partridge besides that was settin' in the spruce buddin'. But the old gun kicked me into the brook. Well, I floundered around, catchin' hold of everything within reach, and when I found myself up on the bank, I had a mink in one hand, a mushquash in t'other and the seat o' mer pants was full o' trout."

Bedford Presbyterian Church

The old Colonial pulpit, which was placed in the church when the present structure was built, in 1828, has been restored and beautified with tall Colonial lamps, and will be re-dedicated Sunday morning at 11 when the sermon by the pastor will be upon "The Wooden Pulpit of the Grace of God." In the evening at 7:30 the topic will be "Paul's Correspondence Card." It is expected that the new lighting system of the church, installed this week, will be in operation for the evening worship. HECKERMAN LETTER

"Happy Bill" Tells of Farming by Electricity.

Spencer, W. Va., October 22, 1911. The sun is shining brightly today. We have had a great deal of rain and high waters for some days. I recently met Mrs. Frank Dunkle. She was as busy as usual and looks well. She says that when she returned from her visit to her old home at Bedford, she found Frank much emaciated from worrying about her, but he has regained his usual avoirdupois and is now happy.

Not long since I referred to electrical farming. I recently visited one such farm near Utica, Ill., where the electric plow turns over 25 acres per day at a low cost. This farmer gets his power from a nearby creek. He says his plant cost him $2,500. This includes motors, cream separators and all other appliances. He lights his house and barn, supplies the house with heat by means of radiators and saws his wood, churns his butter and milks his big herd of cows by electricity. 'Tis said that his wife sits in the house and turns the switches in accordance with the signals from her husband, who is at the barn. These signals are the various long and short rings of the electric bell. He says that the cows prefer to be milked by electricity rather than by hand. This is fine for the fellow who may have the money to buy an electric farm, but it is not so good for the poor one with all his glad rags on, looking for a job at sawing wood or milking cows.

Here is a short catechism for Bedford on real estate. Why don't real estate advance in Bedford? Who causes the stupidity of the market? Why don't the moneyed men of the town put their hands in their pockets and invite industries of various kinds? Why have taxes increased and who pays these increased taxes? The tenants who rent their properties. If the town grows and the property more valuable, the rents and taxes higher, the moneyed sharks richer and richer, what then? Why it actually makes the old man sick when he sees other towns with nothing to back themselves up, doing a whole lot of street paving and in many ways improving their home towns. Tell those who are afraid of a "more beautiful Bedford" that a shroud has no pockets. Take this town of Spencer in West Virginia, a dry town, and see the elegant brick blocks, the palatial homes, paved streets and all kept clean as one would wish to see, with its various bank-doors wide open, inviting those who labor in the vineyard to bring hither their cash and deposit the same within their pearly gates for safe keeping, rather than take it to Parkersburg and spend it in riotous living. Here we have three weekly newspapers and they are dandies. The one, "The Spencer Times," lately started by E. W. McKown, an Ex-Senator, would do honor to a full sized city. The paper, I am sorry to say, would eclipse any of your home papers. Boys, I hate to say it, but 'tis true. The town has a wholesale grocery house, which is managed by a Mr. Fairfax, a prince of good fellows and one who is not afraid to say no. He is assisted by Mrs. Nellie Shrewsbury, a nice-looking widow of nine years. I think the stenographer knows as much about the business as does the manager. I have given you the lady's name. I had to ask her what it was in order to do so, but that does not say that any of your widowers or young men dare write her without her consent.

The water supply of the town is inadequate and not good at that. Many have wells and these, as a rule, have good water. A fire one hot July evening made it hotter still and in an hour the one side of a whole block of buildings was in ashes. I think two hotels, two livery stables, a couple of stores and a half dozen houses gave way to the flames. They still have a dandy hotel, The Arlington. I got such a nice dinner there today for fifty cents that my mouth now at 9 p. m. begins to water for another. The pumpkin pie had eggs and milk in it and was delicious. I wish I had a piece just now.

Say, the nut hunters down here put a stick of dynamite in the fork of a chestnut tree and set it off to shake the nuts down and down they came, you bet. I never knew of so many chestnuts. Sixty-five cents a bushel is the price down this way. They sell them along the streets at five cents a quart. The pawpaws are about over. My, how luscious they are. If any of your readers do not know what a pawpaw is like, I'll tell them. Here is a pun of a salesman:

"When the train pulls in and you grab your grip And the hackman's there with his frayed-out whip, And you call on your man and try to be gay And all you get is 'Nothing doing today,' Then you are a peddler, By gad, you're a peddler."

When you travel along and everything is fine And you don't get up till half-past nine, When you see each concern and talk conditions And write it all home with many additions, Then you're a traveling man, By gad, you're a traveling man.

When you call upon the trade and they talk 'hard times,' Lower prices and decided declines, But you talk and you smile, make the world look bright, And send in your orders every blamed night, Then you're a salesman, By gad, you're a salesman."—Pittsfield. Yours truly, M. P. Heckerman.

Point

October 25—Mrs. Levi Miller died at her home here Tuesday evening. Henry Miller of Johnstown has been here for several weeks, helping care for his parents. Levi Miller's health is fairly good, except that he suffers a great deal from rheumatic pains.

Mrs. Harry Otto is improving very nicely now and the children have about recovered from the mumps.

Several candidates attended George Kimmel's sale on Thursday, among them being John Fletcher and Thomas Imler.

J. W. Hissong, wife, son and daughter, of Windber, were the guests of your correspondent on Sunday and Monday. Wilson M. Hissong and two daughters, of Cessna, also visited us on Sunday.

Our supervisor and roadmaster F. B. Nunnemaker built a new bridge near the Point school house last week. Blair Evans and Joe Griffith, of Fishertown, did the masonry work. Mr. Nunnemaker has hands now taking out stone for a stone culvert near William Winegardner's. What work Mr. Nunnemaker is doing is being done right and will last for years.

John Benna attended the funeral of his brother, Harry Benna, of near Hyndman last week.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Slagenweight moved last week to Martinsburg, Blair County, where Mr. Slagenweight has bought a property. He has secured permanent employment there.

Mrs. David Deaner and daughter, of Springhope, and Mrs. T. B. Nunnemaker were pleasant callers of your scribe and family on Tuesday.

Frank McCoy was the guest of D. M. Wonders on Tuesday.

D. Cress Rolley, Republican candidate for District Attorney, was hunting up old friends on Tuesday. Hooker.

New Paris

October 25—George Otto of Johnstown was in our midst on business last week.

Mrs. Henry Mitchell is spending this week among relatives and friends in Johnstown.

Charles Shaffer and wife, of Hollidaysburg, were guests in our vicinity on Saturday and Sunday.

Howard Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Moore, died on the 21st with diphtheria, aged 15 years, seven months and 10 days. Interment was made in the Reformed Cemetery, at New Paris Sunday afternoon.

G. M. McMillen and son have painted their storeroom and dwelling, which adds much to the appearance.

Frank McCreary, son of Mr. and Mrs. Randall McCreary, on Saturday, October 21st, shot a squirrel. While attempting to pick it up, threw his gun in some bushes, when the contents of the second barrel passed through his leg between the knee and ankle, tearing it almost off. He died from the effects Monday evening about 5 o'clock. —Caj.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION

The following amendments to the Constitution of Pennsylvania will be submitted to the vote of the electors at the general election, said Constitutional Amendments being as follows, to wit:

Proposed Amendment to the Constitution No. 1

Shall Section Eight of Article Nine of the Constitution be amended so as to read as follows?

Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, except the assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law; but any city, the debt of which now exceeds seven per centum of such assessed valuation, may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum, in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation, except any debt or debts hereinafter incurred by the city and county of Philadelphia for the construction and development of subways for transit purposes, or for the construction of wharves and docks, or the reclamation of land to be used in the construction of wharves and docks, as public improvements, owned or to be owned by said city and county of Philadelphia, and which shall yield to the city and county of Philadelphia a present net revenue in excess of the interest on said debt or debts and of the annual installments necessary for the cancellation of said debt or debts, may be included in ascertaining the power of the city and county of Philadelphia to become indebted otherwise indebted. Provided, That a sinking fund for the cancellation shall be established and maintained.

Proposed Amendment to the Constitution No. 2

Shall Section Six of Article Five of the Constitution be amended so as to read as follows?

Section 6. In the county of Philadelphia all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the district court and courts of common pleas, subject to such changes as may be made by this Constitution or by law, shall be vested in a court of five distinct and separate courts of equal and co-ordinate jurisdiction, composed of three judges each. The said courts in Philadelphia shall be designated respectively as the court of common pleas number one, number two, number three, number four, and number five, but the number of said courts may be increased or decreased from time to time, and shall be in like manner designated by successive numbers. The number of judges in any of said courts, or in any county where the establishment of an additional court may be authorized by law, may be increased from time to time, and whenever such increase shall amount in the whole to three, such three judges shall compose a distinct and separate court of said county, and shall be numbered as aforesaid. In Philadelphia all suits shall be instituted in the said courts of common pleas without designating the number of a court, and in the several counties shall distribute and apportion the business among them in such manner as shall be provided by rules of court and each court to which an action shall be thus assigned shall have exclusive jurisdiction thereof, subject to change of venue, as shall be provided by law.

In the county of Allegheny all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the several numbered courts of common pleas, shall be vested in one court of common pleas, composed of all the judges in commission in said county. Such jurisdiction and powers shall extend to all proceedings in law and in equity which shall have been instituted in the several numbered courts, and shall be subject to such changes as may be made by law, and subject to change of venue as provided by law. The president judge of said court shall be selected as provided by law. The number of judges in said court may be increased or decreased from time to time. This amendment shall take effect on the first day of January succeeding its adoption.

NEVER SATISFIED.
Rain, rain, rain, drop, drip, drop!
Is it Noah's flood? Will it never stop?
Wish it would get dry and more!
My, but rain's an awful bore!
Boo, hoo, hoo, this awful rain!
Hope it never rains again!

Dry, dry, dry! Oh, the cloud of dust!
Is this awful winter sure to go?
God, send down a waterspout!
I'm dried up inside and out!
Let 'er flicker! Let 'er pour!
Let 'er rain forevermore!

Cold, cold, cold—way below zero!
Is this awful winter sure to go?
Take me up to Cook's north pole!
Drop in freeze to death, I fear!
Thunder, what a big coal bill!
Hurry, I've another chill!

Hot, hot, hot! Ain't it awful hot?
Where on earth is there a nice cool spot?
Take me up to Cook's north pole!
Drop in freeze to death, I fear!
Rush us winter! Rush it now!
Wow, wow, wow!

SYSTEM NEEDED FOR FARM FLOCKS.

Uncle Sam's chief poultry asset is the farm flock, and some government smart aleck gives it a knock by saying that the average farm hen lays but sixty eggs per year.

If nothing good came out of Nazareth, how about poultry statistics from Washington? The farm flocks does a better egg stunt—accurate egg records from Uncle Sam's 5,000,000 farm flocks will prove it—but if the farm hen on some farms does not reach her maximum it is not generally because she is a mongrel mutt, but because of lack of system.

By system we do not refer to the gold brick-bonanza books, by which one is able to become rich quick from four hens on a lot 6 by 10, but we speak of scientific, sensible, natural methods, by the application of which a flock pays, and pays the maximum.

On many farms there are no special breeding pens, where the best producers are penned to beget their kind, but eggs for hatching are taken from the general flock. These flocks often consist of old and young, mature and immature fowls. By such a hit or miss method a strain from best layers cannot be built up. With no selection there can be no improvement. With a mixed up flock one cannot expect but their like. Stamina, egg production, uniform bantam market carcass, come from selected thoroughbred breeders bred straight.

On some farms all the eggs are not found on the day laid. Hens lay in any old place; hence the bad reputation of the haymow egg and the slander that farmers by careless nesting and handling cause the rots and spots. We are not knocking the farmer here, but simply say that some farmers should control their hens better, should have better nesting facilities, for tons of eggs are lost in hidden nests, and many are spoiled for table and hatching because they lie in the heat. Some farmers still stick to corn the year around. This is not best food, but fattener and not the best fattener at that.

There is need for the study of content tables and formulation of feeds to suit the needs of the fowl for the purpose in view, so that fowls may be fully finished for market or winter eggs may be more plentiful on some farms.

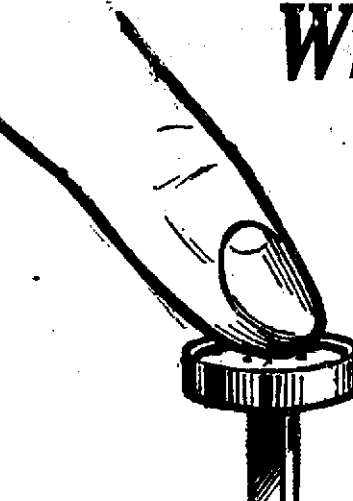

As to housing, there is general improvement in poultry house construction. Some farmers have yet to learn that a henhouse is not just for roosting, but that it should be a light, dry, clean, roomy, comfortable, well ventilated hen home, a place for sleeping, sunning, dusting, eating and exercising to bring those high priced winter eggs and with the yards a comfortable place of confinement for hens while crops are growing.

DON'TS.

- Don't fail to spray mother hen's quarters often for crawlers.
- Don't preserve eggs that are over a day old, and keep the water glass in a cool place.
- Don't ship eggs away when it costs less money and trouble to secure a higher priced private trade at home.
- Don't neglect to flavor the mash with a reasonable amount of salt and keep a block of rock salt in the pigeon loft.
- Don't go crazy when a hen louse joy rides on your bald top. Think of poor Biddy when John Bughouse is on the job.
- Don't let the blood drip on the feathers while dry picking and always keep white feathers separate, as they command the best price.
- Don't fail to dress poultry in the style your market demands. To get and hold good trade you must cater to its whims and throw in some extra for good measure.
- Don't dress fowls in a place unscreened from flies. One blowfly can spoil a whole shipment. One maggot may chase away your best and most sensible customer.

Hon. Ark. J. E. Freeman says: "I had a severe case of kidney trouble and could not work and my case seemed hopeless. One large bottle of Foley's Kidney Remedy cured me and I have never been bothered since. I always recommend it." Ed. D. Heckerman.

Circuits will be used for train dispatching and the other for an inter-calling message circuit. The dispatcher for both circuits will be located at Rockwood.

A train circuit will also run from Newark, O., to Cambridge, O., a distance of 52 miles; and between these two points another train circuit will be run as an open circuit, and from there on to Bernwood Junction, O. This will cover a distance of 105 miles, on which fifteen selector equipments will be used. The dispatcher for both of these circuits will be located at Newark.

The other circuit is an inter-calling message circuit which will parallel the train wires running from Newark to Bernwood Junction, a distance of 105 miles. Twenty-eight stations will be equipped on this circuit and the dispatcher will be located at Newark.

Lesson V.—Fourth Quarter, For Oct. 29, 1911.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Ps. lxxxv—Memory Verses, 10, 11—Golden Text, Ps. cxxvi, 3—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The Holy Spirit used several people to write the Psalms, such as David and Asaph and Moses (see titles of Psalms lxxii, lxxiii, lxxiv, lxxx and Neh. xii, 46), but no doubt each one would say as David did, "The Spirit of the Lord spake by me, and His word was in my tongue" (II Sam. xiii, 2). Both prophets and poets were "the Lord's messengers with the Lord's message," speaking or writing as moved by the Holy Spirit (Hag. i, 13; II Pet. i, 21). The occasion of this psalm was some deliverance from some captivity which had come upon them because of their sins, possibly some of the oppressions in the days of the Judges, but it looked onward to the deliverance from the captivity in Babylon and also beyond the times in which we live to the final restoration of Israel to their own land, after which they shall be picked up no more forever (Isa. xl, 11, 12; Jer. xlii, 10; Amos ix, 14, 15).

We cannot do better than take the division of the psalm suggested by Mr. Spurgeon in his "Treasury of David," in which he says that in verses 1-4 the poet sings of the Lord's former mercies, and begs Him to remember His people; in verses 5-7 he pleads the cause of afflicted Israel, and then, having listened to the sacred oracle in verse 8, he publishes in verses 9-13 the joyful tidings of future good.

We must always remember that there are a land and a people distinct from every other land and people chosen by God as a center of blessing to all the world—Thy land, O Immortal, and the children of Israel, a people near unto Him (Isa. viii, 8; Ps. cxviii, 14). But, inasmuch as the Lord God of Israel is none other than the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, He who says, "I am the Lord, I change not" (Mal. iii, 6), every true child of God may claim His love and mercy as his own and rejoice in His salvation.

The first verses "Thou hast" of the three times declare Him as the doer of it all, and so we must see Him in every phase of salvation, doing all for His own name's sake, without any cause or reason why on our part except our guilt and need. "Not for your sakes, but for mine own name's sake" (Zech. xxi, 22).

The word "favorable" in verse 1 is in the margin "well pleased with" and reminds us of Isa. xlii, 21, "The Lord is well pleased for His righteousness' sake." There is only one with whom He is always well pleased, and His is the only righteousness that can stand, but it is given freely to all penitent ones (I Cor. i, 30; I Cor. v, 21; Isa. lxi, 10; xlv, 24), and all such can rejoice in iniquity forgiven, sin covered, wrath gone (Ps. xxxii, 1, 2; Rom. iv, 6-8; I Thess. i, 10; I John ii, 12).

The word "salvation" in verses 4, 7, 9, opens to us the whole Bible and fixes our eyes and our hearts upon Him of whom, as His redeemed ones, we are able to say, "Behold, God is my salvation," and of whom the Old Simeon spake when, holding the Babe in his arms he said, "Mine eyes have seen thy salvation" (Isa. xli, 2; Luke ii, 30). I am helped by thinking of Him and His salvation under six aspects, threefold as individual and threefold in a larger sense. Our individual salvation includes first all that becomes ours when we receive Jesus Christ as our Saviour—eternal life, forgiveness of sins, acceptance in Him, etc., then the working this out or manifesting it in the daily life and then the perfection of it all in our glorified body at His coming. The larger aspect includes first the whole church, His body, then all Israel and then all nations. What a word it is and what a glorious privilege to proclaim it and to announce that "the grace of God bringeth salvation to all men" (Tit. ii, 11). The question will not down, "Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?" to tell the wondrous story, but so very few are saying, "Here am I; send me" (Isa. vi, 8). Verse 8 should take hold of every believer's heart, and there should be a firm determination to hear only what God the Lord has said. Opinions of men concerning the things of God are worth nothing and are often worse than nothing and had better never have been uttered. In Christ Jesus, by virtue of His great sacrifice by which He made peace (Col. i, 20), there is peace with God for every true penitent and perfect peace which passeth all understanding for any and every one whose mind is stayed on Him (Rom. v, 1; Isa. xlii, 3; Jer. xxxi, 11; Phil. iv, 6, 7; John xiv, 27).

Righteousness and peace are inseparably associated, for there can be no peace apart from righteousness, and it must be the righteousness of His providing, for He says that ours is only filthy rags (Isa. lxiv, 6). It is true now, as it will be in His kingdom upon this earth, that "the work of righteousness shall be peace and the effect (or service) of righteousness quietness and assurance forever" (Isa. xxxii, 17). With this righteousness we have the assurance of all good (Ps. lxxiv, 11; Rom. viii, 32).

SCORES CLERGY'S METHODS

Rev. Boecel Declares Detection Work Desecrates Ministers and Pulpit.
The Rev. C. L. Boecel, pastor of the St. James Lutheran Church, and one of the most widely known clergymen of the East Side, roundly scored certain members of the ministerium for their detective work in behalf of the "Blue Laws" enforcement, when seen last evening by a representative of the Times. He declared the work of the clergymen today is not parading the streets, hunting evidence against their parishioners, but preaching the gospel in the pulpit. This Rev. Boecel firmly believes to be the mission of a minister who would raise the spiritual status of his flock.

"Furthermore, such action on their part desecrates these men, styling themselves as ministers, desecrates the loftiest and noblest conceptions of the pulpit. In my opinion their place would be with their congregations laboring for the salvation of souls. Notwithstanding the protestations of some of the leaders in the present movement for an enforcement of the 'Blue Laws,' those very men themselves would cry loudly, if their Sunday ice cream and plentiful dinners were taken away."—Altoona Times.

Moths in Wheat

At this season much damage is done to wheat and other grain crops both in the mow and bin by insects, chief among which is the Angoumois grain moth. To a correspondent who has suffered from the ravages of moths in wheat, Prof. H. A. Surface, Economic Zoologist of the State Department of Agriculture, writes as follows:

"It is very important for you to thresh your wheat just as soon as possible. The longer you let it remain in the straw the longer will the weevil and moth remain in it. Thresh the wheat and put it into barrels, boxes or bins, and then pour over it one pound of carbon bisulfide for each one hundred bushels of wheat, and cover it with wet blankets or carpets, and let it remain a day to fumigate, and the fumes will kill the pests.

"We have published in previous Bulletins and News Letters to the effect that for the weevil and moth the threshing should be done soon.

"Your communication stating that they are worse around the outer edge of the mow proves just what we have said about it. They will gradually work farther and farther into the mow, and then treatment will be useless, if you do not thresh it and save that which you have."

Here are the Calls That Everybody Must Make

In a practical talk on every-day etiquette in the November Woman's Home Companion the author records the calls that one must positively make:

"Certain stated calls must be made. The call at least once a year upon those on your calling-list; the call after having been entertained at dinner, or luncheon, or at an evening entertainment; the call of congratulation after a marriage, or a birth; the call of condolence upon those in sorrow; the call of inquiry at the house of illness; the call upon the newcomer into your neighborhood, or upon a stranger who has been introduced to you by a friend; the return call, when a first call has been made upon you, none of these can be evaded. A first call should be returned within a week, or at longest a fortnight, a dinner call, or, in fact, any others of those named should be paid promptly.

"If two women call together, it is the older of the two who makes the signal for departure by rising or giving a significant glance to her companion.

"There is no need for great formality of conduct in calling. The well-bred woman who is at ease in her own house need have no fear of appearing awkward in the house of another. To come in quietly after leaving her card at the door, to speak, first of all, to her hostess, then to recognize the other persons present; to chat with those nearest the seat she has taken, avoiding topics which might lead to argument or discussion; to take her cup of tea and bit of cake or sandwich; to leave at the end of twenty minutes, or half an hour after shaking hands with her hostess, and bowing farewell to the others present,—here is all that constitutes a call. A little familiarity robs calling of any terrors it may possess for the bashful, or for those unaccustomed to society; and one learns it is just the old-time 'afternoon visit' with a new name."

FORMER COUNTY PASTORS

Rev. E. M. Stevens and Rev. E. E. Harter Have Experiences in Austin Flood.

Austin, Pa., October 24.—The hustle, bustle and horror of the flood clean-up wearing gradually away, the hidden human interest stories in connection with Austin's "Black Saturday" are coming to the surface. They would fill a book of themselves. Perhaps out of the flotsam and jetsam of the wreckage of firesides and homes one most notable concerns a dignified high church official who came here to help his pastor bury the dead and succor his parishioners, but who was led all the way to Costello afoot to dig a pair of child's shoes out of the wreckage that his four-year-old sweetheart might have footwear from which her bare toes did not peep. The child is the tiny daughter of Rev. and Mrs. E. E. Harter, and the church dignitary whose heart was touched to the quick is Rev. Emory M. Stevens, superintendent of the Williamsport district of the Methodist Church, and one of the most prominent leaders in all Pennsylvania.

Rev. Mr. Stevens was out in an isolated section of his circuit when the news of the disaster at Austin reached him. Though entailed to the limit with other official duties pertaining to the holding of quarterly conferences, he dropped all and started for Williamsport, that he might come to Austin as quickly as possible. At Williamsport he was given nearly $70 for the immediate use of Rev. Mr. Harter and his parishioners, and this he expressed at once to Keating Summit, directing the Methodist minister there by telegraph to lift the package and get it to Rev. Mr. Harter.

Took the Funeral Task

The following day, Rev. Mr. Stevens reached Austin himself. He is a man several inches beyond six feet in height and hardened to the outdoors by reason of his travels by foot and team over the hills of Central Pennsylvania. When he reached Austin he was in the garb of an ordinary traveler and was here for work. He found Rev. Mr. Harter dressed in the same shirt, collar and other clothing that he had on when the flood swept the church and parsonage away. At that moment Rev. Mr. Harter was preparing to hold a funeral service over six of the bodies of his parishioners, who had been among the flood victims. Rev. Mr. Stevens held the service for him.

After that he went to the place where the Harters were temporarily staying. He was met at the door by Mary, the baby of the Harter family, who had learned to love the big district superintendent, who on this occasion took her in his arms and hugged her amid his own and her tears. Just then he saw her toes peeping out of a torn stocking and a worn shoe—just little sandals they were, for she had been playing about the house that Saturday afternoon when her father burst into the house and called them all to flee and carried her away.

The big minister told Mary that he would get her a new pair of shoes before he left that day. The child dried her tears, and smiled her gratitude. But the promise was easier made than fulfilled—there wasn't a child's shoe to be had in Austin. That didn't stop Rev. Mr. Stevens. He heard there was a store left at Costello, three miles down the valley.

Excuse Enough for Him

He had no other business down there except to get Mary Harter's shoes and keep his promise. But these were enough, and down he went. He found the store. There were men's and women's shoes hanging on the hooks at the store door, but no children's shoes, they were somewhere in a box among the awful litter that had been made when the stock was dumped together to save it from the flood that was known to be coming down the valley.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering, therefore, if kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results are most likely to follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys most, because they do most, and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit.

The storekeeper was too busy to search for the shoes, but nodded his head in the direction of a pile of stuff in which he thought they might be. Rev. Mr. Stevens began the search. At last he found them, and of a size that he was quite sure would fit Mary. Then he started back for Austin. Mary was waiting; the promise was fulfilled; the child was happy—and so was the big district superintendent; that is, as happy as he could be amidst such scenes of ruin.

When Rev. Mr. Stevens left Austin that evening he had with him the two oldest daughters of Rev. and Mrs. Harter, who are now inmates of his home at Williamsport, where they will remain all winter and attend the Dickinson Seminary. — Philadelphia Record.

VARIETIES OF APPLES

The State Zoologist, Prof. H. A. Surface, was asked by a correspondent to name a list of best varieties of apples for a person planting 100 trees. The following letter by the Professor may be a help to others who are contemplating planting an orchard of this size:

"For one hundred apples trees for commercial purposes I would plant twenty-five Stayman Winesap, twenty-five York Imperial, fifteen Rome Beauty, fifteen Mammoth Black Twig or Paragon, ten Summer Rambo and ten Smokehouse. If there is room for a few more I would add from ten to twenty Jonathan. If you wish to cut down the list to reduce it, for your region, I would recommend Stayman Winesap, York Imperial, and for a third variety make your own personal choice between Rome Beauty, Jonathan, Paragon and Smokehouse. The list which I have named has the special value of ripening at different dates.

"You can commence with your Summer Rambo, and these will be followed by Smokehouse, which in turn will be followed by Grimes Golden, Jonathan, Rome Beauty, Paragon and Stayman Winesap in order, until you come to York Imperial, which can be picked last. While the York Imperial is not regarded as of high quality, it is one of the very best commercial apples for that region. It is a strong grower, and is a good bearer, and the fruit has good color and size, and sells well.

"I would advise you to go slow on summer apples, but if you wish to plant some apples to ripen before the Summer Rambo I would recommend Yellow Transparent, Red Astrachan, Cornell's Fancy and Maiden Blush. If you are planting for local market, where you expect to sell them yourself, you can afford to prolong the ripening season by planting a number of varieties that will give a succession in date of ripening. If yours is to be a shipping market, the fewer varieties you plant, and the more you condense your picking period, so as to ship quite a quantity at once, the better it may prove to be for you.

"I would not plant the trees this fall in ground that is seeded in wheat, unless I could keep the tree row cultivated, beginning next spring, and cultivating the tree row itself with a one-horse cultivator, letting the wheat grow between the rows. Above all else, you should avoid planting in wheat or grain field or sod field, and letting the young trees remain uncultivated. If you wish to get the field in clover before planting, go ahead, and grow your wheat, and take it off next summer, and you will have a clover field after you sow your cloverseed in the spring and it starts right, and then you can plow this under before planting next fall, or what would probably be better would be to let your clover sod remain over winter, and plow it under early in the spring. There is no great advantage in fall planting, where you are planting only a few trees and will have plenty of time to get them properly planted early in the spring.

"About the only advantage of fall planting is that you get the planting out of the way. The disadvantage in your case would be that you have turned over your clover sod, and have your ground exposed to washing during the winter. If you can get some cover crop on it like rye, that will hold the moisture and grow further fertility, this can be done in the fall, and will be a good plan."

Giant Cheese Weighs Over Five Tons
The world's largest cheese, eight feet in diameter and five feet high, weighing slightly over 12,000 pounds, was recently manufactured at Appleton, Wis., the services of more than 40 expert cheesemakers and their experienced helpers being required for the job. The November Popular Mechanics Magazine says: "The cheese, which was made for exhibition at the National Dairy Show at Chicago contained exactly 12,000 pounds of curd, 330 pounds of salt, and 31 pounds of rennet, making the finished product weigh 12,361 pounds, three times larger than the biggest cheese ever before manufactured. The curd came from 32 different cheese factories, and the milk, 18,000 gallons in quantity, from over 1,200 farmers and was produced by 8,000 pure bred Holstein and Guernsey cows valued at 1,500,000. The greatest care had to be taken to insure the curd being uniform."

Three Meetings

By F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Three times I saw her, three times I gazed upon her, each time being drawn nearer to her before I knew her sorrow.

I was riding on a railroad train to my home in the suburbs of a great city when looking up I saw a girl who faced me gazing at me with a pair of large brown eyes. There was in her face something like sadness, but not sadness, rather the appearance of one born under different conditions from other mortals—a resignation, yet a contentment in resignation. I have tried by these words to describe it, but am conscious of having failed.

Though her eyes were fixed upon me, there was no boldness in them. Rather she seemed unconscious of meeting my gaze. Perhaps, I thought, she is thinking of something so absorbing that though she is looking straight at me she does not see me, or it may be that she is looking at something beyond me. I have often returned a salute from a person who meant it for one behind me. So I continued to gaze at the girl and she at me till she turned her face in another direction.

She was sitting by a lady double her age, and the likeness between them indicated that they were mother and daughter. Presently the train stopped at a station, and the two left the car together. I had noticed by the affectionate glances the mother gave the daughter that she idolized her, and when they passed out it was hand in hand.

I did not forget the face, and a year later I saw it again. This time it was in a church. She was, as before, accompanied by her mother. I was sitting in a transept; the girl was facing the pulpit. There was the same look, indescribable in words, that had impressed me twelve months ago. Her gaze was fixed on the clergyman, though occasionally she would drop it as though looking into her lap. There was in me a vague feeling—something like a hope—that when I had seen her on the train she had been, at least a part of the time, looking at me, cognizant of my presence; that she had remembered me as I remembered her. I watched to see if she would not look in my direction. Just before the close of the service I was rewarded by seeing her turn, and her eyes rested upon me. I looked for something to indicate that she was conscious of my presence and that she had seen me before. But there was only that strange look of resignation I had seen before. After the benediction she and her mother left the church in the same manner as they had left the train.

The third meeting. Having a law case I was waiting in the courtroom for it to be tried. A criminal case was called—that of Evelyn Bryce. Who should come into court to answer to the charge of forgery but the girl I had seen twice before. She came hand and hand with her mother.

Naturally I was wrapped in the trial. The prisoner's attorney was evidently trying to prove a conspiracy on the part of certain persons against his client. When he made a point in her favor or her case appeared to be going against her I looked to see what effect it had upon her. I could see very little. I was not sure that I could see any. I noticed that the jury—in deed, all those in the courtroom—were looking at her; that they seemed as much impressed with that look of mingled resignation and content as I.

The defendant's counsel exhibited the document that the girl was accused of forging and showed that the name had been written on the line intended for it without the raising or depression of a single letter and without incline either up or down.

"You see, gentlemen of the jury," he said, "that whoever wrote that name must have written it in a bright light must have written with a pair of eyes that worked thoroughly in concert, for there are defects of eyesight that cause persons so affected to write slanting the lines downward or upward."

"I presume," interrupted the prosecuting attorney, "that defendant's counsel proposes to prove that his client has the defect he mentions. I would call your honor's attention to the fact that the prisoner has a very beautiful pair of eyes. Indeed, I greatly fear that she is using them upon the jury with a view to securing her acquittal."

The accused's counsel received in silence for a few moments this attempt to prejudice the court and the jury against his client. Then he said:

"The prosecuting attorney is mistaken, your honor. I am not intending to prove that my client has this special defect. I would for her sake that it had pleased her Creator to give her this defect instead of the one with which she is afflicted. Gentlemen of the jury, my client is unable to cast upon you glances calculated to excite your sympathy any more than she could have seen to write her name exactly on the line in that document, for she is stone blind."

The effect produced on the court by this announcement rendered any further process of law unnecessary. The jury without leaving their seats acquitted the accused, and I now knew why when she and her mother left the courtroom they went hand in hand.

This is but the beginning of a story in which I have been long and am still deeply interested.

GAMBLERS OF HIGH POSITION

Great Ladies of England Formerly
Played Continually and for the Highest Stakes.

A little over a century ago there were hundreds of great ladies in England who made their drawing rooms regular gambling dens, and many in the most exalted social positions lost, or won, as the case might be, thousands of dollars in a single night's play. The royal princesses did not hesitate to play for the highest stakes and a faro bank was a portion of the paraphernalia of Dame Fashion.

Queen Elizabeth was fond of cards, but she was inclined to be somewhat peevish and lost her temper at the game. Mary, Queen of the Scots, carried her infatuation to the extent of wagering her personal attire on a game. She would play continually from Saturday to Monday, and sacrifice her wardrobe, if necessary, to do so. Queen Ann of Austria was fairly pursued by ill luck, we are told, but she is said to have played without passion or greed.

Anne Boleyn was an inveterate gambler, as were all the wives of Henry VIII., with one exception—Catherine of Aragon did not gamble, as she had no love for the card table. Nell Gwyn lost 400 guineas one night to the niece of a notorious gambler, Mazarin, who afterward died insolvent, having lost at cards an enormous fortune left to her by her cardinal uncle. Cards are still popular among the hostesses of many of the English drawing rooms, but not to the extent they were a century ago.

WHY HE LIKES WATERMELONS

Colored Man Discourses Philosophically on Those Soothing, Cooling and Filling Fruits.

A well-known lawyer, who is spending his vacation at home doing nothing, or, as he says, "loafing with all his might," tells of a talk he had recently with his colored hired man.

Going to the stable he found John with his face buried in a big piece of watermelon.

"Why is it, John, that colored people are so fond of watermelons?"

"I don't know," he replied, grinning, "less it's jes' because dey's people. I knows a heap o' white folks 'at likes 'em, too. I likes 'em 'cause dey's soothing, an' coolin', an' fillin', an' I spose dey 'stimulates dat away wid white folks. I reckon dey ain' much difference 'tween white folks and cullud folks' insides."

"Perhaps not. Do you consider the watermelon a fruit or a vegetable?"

"Well, now, it's jus' like this: Water melons ain' no vegetable, cause dey won't stan' cookin' like cabbage nor cannin' like beans, nor dryin' like red peppers, an' dey ain' no fruit, 'cause dey don't grow on trees an' you can't put 'em in your pockets like apples and peaches. Looks to me like dey's jes' watermelons."

"How would it do to call it the fruit of a cucurbitaceous vine, distinguished for interior pulpiness and copiousness of watery juice?"

"Dat's it, 'zactly," said John; "dat's jus' what I was goin' to say."—Indianapolis News.

Cooper's Piano.

W. N. Potter of Cooperstown, N. Y., has in his possession a piano which he values very highly and is fond of showing to his visitors. It was owned by James Fenimore Cooper.

C. D. Pease of Cooperstown made the piano and the great novelist bought it. Afterward he sold it to Judge Stewart, and, after passing through the hands of B. F. Jacobs of Milford and his daughter, it came into the hands of Mr. Potter. It is of six octaves, and is in a solid mahogany frame of plain design.

THREAD DOES SLEUTH WORK

Milwaukee Merchant Devises a Clever
Scheme to Get Rid of a Troublesome Shoplifter.

The manager of a local department store took an efficacious method of ridding himself of a troublesome petty shoplifter recently. The woman has been coming into the store and picking up a small remnant, spool of thread, thimble or other article that happened to be lying about, having little intrinsic value, but being nevertheless a source of annoyance to both the clerk and the management. Because of the position of the woman, it was undesirable to institute an action.

A few days ago the manager took a spool of silk from the case, fastened the loose end of the thread with a tack, and all wing a bit of slack, left it upon the counter. It was not long before his party arrived, and deftly dropping the spool into her shopping bag, started out. The manager detached the loose end and followed her up the street a few yards in the rear. He trailed her into another downtown store, and, as she was standing beside a counter in the midst of a crowded array of bargain seekers, approached her, calmly winding his thread and politely said:

"Madame, I'll trouble you for that spool of thread."

What followed can be more easily imagined than described. He got the thread and has not been troubled with losses since, nor have the other stores, so far as may be learned.—Milwaukee Free Press

TO PROTECT WATER BUCKETS

Stable Boys Bore Holes in Their Bottoms and Carry Corks in Their Pockets.

"Anybody who has occasion to use a water bucket," said a man acquainted with their various uses, "is likely to pick up the first one he comes to, then he may put it back where he found it or he may not."

"It was to prevent their being carried off in this way and left around where they didn't belong that fire buckets came to be made with round bottoms, so that they wouldn't stand on their own bottom. Such buckets, as you know, are kept filed with water and standing around in buildings supported in holders having rounded out spaces in which the buckets rest. These buckets are likely to be left where they belong."

"A man who doesn't know their peculiarity may come along some day and pick up one of them and carry it off, but he is likely to leave the fire buckets alone after one experience of seeing the bucket he has carried off roll over when he set it down and spill out all the water."

"Perhaps you don't know what stable boys do to keep their buckets where they can find them. The stable boy protects his particular bucket by boring a hole in its bottom, so that it won't hold water; nobody wants a bucket that won't hold water. Then he carries in his pocket a cork that will fit the hole in the bucket, and when he has use for it he simply plugs the hole, and there's the bucket ready for use."

"To be sure other boys around a stable may carry corks in their pockets, but the run of people don't; and so the boy who has bored the bottom of his bucket is at least a little more likely to find it when he wants it than he would be if it had no hole in it."

Dismal Swamp Water.

Many interesting observations were made during a recent excursion into the Dismal Swamp of Virginia, sent out by the Washington Academy of Sciences. The swamp is divided into two parts, as far as the character of the vegetation is concerned—the "black gum" and the "juniper" areas. The juniper area is of particular interest. Juniper is the local name for the Southern white cedar. Swamp blueberry, white cedar, inkberry, fetter bush and other species of the heather family are intermingled with the juniper trees. The water of the juniper swamp contains a remarkably small amount of mineral matter and has a color of tea. It is antiseptic, and the Dismal swamp sea water contains the favorite supply of drinking water for the starting of swimmers from Norfolk. The salt water is "juniper water" and is a food of the "Youth's Companion."
